AIRPORT DEPARTURE TAX

These tickets are in three parts. Upon presentation of the plane ticket at security, the traveller pays for the tax stamp. The clerk gives two parts to the traveller and keeps one part. At the gate one presents the other two portions where another security clerk takes one of the two remaining stubs. The staff bundles up these receipts and, as I understand, an accounting of both receipts is made in a government office not located in the airport. These measures are to ensure that the cash is accounted for.
